

A dealer cannot use your credit information to take a deposit unless you agree to it

BC law says who can collect, use, and store personal information. You have the right to know how and why a dealer is taking your information. The general rule is that it must only be used for the same purpose for which it was collected.

A dealer cannot use your credit information to take a deposit unless you agree to it. If the dealer charges your credit card for a payment you did not approve, report it to the credit card company. Ask the company to reverse the charge due to fraud.
